

The Boyfriend ...and other tales of love and loss

Following on from his first collection of short stories Lonely Man, Conor Lynch is proud to release a second collection in this highly popular genre. The Boyfriend...and other tales of love and loss, examines the different types of loving relationships in today's society. It also closes in on the heartbreak and conflict that embellishes the modern world. In the main story of the title, The Boyfriend, we meet a stranger who arrives in a small Irish town and is instantly attracted to a local girl. However, the girl is committed to a struggling relationship and when the stranger tries to change things he is met with terrible consequences and decisions for all involved. The Washing Machine is a humorous tale of what can go wrong when a husband and wife are not entirely honest with each other. In Christmas with a Conscience, we have a festive tale of believing your dreams come through. This set of stories is a charming collection re-invigorating the short story and allowing the reader the time to ponder on each tale. The short story is alive and well!
