

Running against the rain

This second collection of poems from David Simmons will both inspire you and encourage you to step back from your busy life and consider what it is to be you, alive and in this moment. Stop, stand and listen, observe human behaviour and the intricacies of interaction. Consider your dreams, wonder what your soul is and how does the possibility of multiverses and life on other planets sit with society? These poems don't provide the answers but they will provoke your thinking.
